While our citizens realize the fact that the graded school is a permanent institution of the town, they also feel the scarcity of money and are naturally infected with the general epidemic of economy. But they acted wisely in not depriving their children of the splendid advantages furnished by the school, and especially as these advantages could not be obtained near so cheaply by a subscription school.

A DEFINITE PLAN.

Level Headed Farmer Writes Some Sound Sense on What to Plant.

Editor of THE ENQUIRER: A great deal has been said by prominent and intelligent farmers as to the course to be pursued in regard to the coming crop. A great deal of good advice has been given in a general way. All are agreed that some change must be made. This seems to be a case where every individual farmer will have to work out his own salvation for himself. No plan could be given that would suit all sections and conditions of the people, but it is about time that all had reached a conclusion as to what changes, if any, are to be made on their

Thus far, to my knowledge, no one who has been talking or writing for publication, has given the definite plan or course that they themselves intend to pursue. Now it occurs to me that if these intelligent farmers could or would give something definite, it would help some others to reach a conclusion. Many of them are leading men in their section of country and have a greater or less following. Naturally the small farmers look to and follow after the successful large farmers. As nothing of the kind seems to be forthcoming, I will give you the plans of a little, insignificant farmer as formulated

While thus engaged his clothes became ignited, and before help arrived he was burned beyond recovery.

- The freshet in the Congaree last week did considerable damage to the Columbia canal, or rather it showed that the walls of the canal were not as strong as the engineers calculated on. The test of the canal has been to fill it with water until it ran over the wasteways, and it has stood this test very well. Last week the flood in the river added a heavy pressure to the outer side and the stone wall opposite the penitentiary was somewhat undermined by the waters. No break occurred, but the incident showed that Greenville dispatch of last Thursday says immediate repairs are necessary.
